Dear Nnamdi Okpala,

Re: Formal Complaint

I am writing following the formal complaint that you made and was brought to my attention on the 27th of April 2024 through email regarding the issue of a staff named (Mary) on Biscuit for everyone.

I met with you (Nnamdi Okpala) on the 29th of April 2024 to discuss the issue above;

- You informed me that you came downstairs to make a cup of tea and nibble some biscuits which you have seen other residents take and leave. But you were stopped by staff saying it is meant for staff only. You were not happy about it and you informed staff that it is for everyone.
- You informed me that staff on shift yelled at you and did not allow you to take the biscuit, saying it is meant for staff.
- You mentioned the information documented by staff were all lies and it is not the first time that staff have concealed information. So, you feel this happens when prolonged conversation occurs.
- You mentioned that you believe you are been victimised (targeted) as if you are in the wrong.

I spoke to you that I would need to speak with staff to find out what happened to get her feedback.

I spoke to staff (Mary) on the 29th of April, 2024. On her incident report she mentioned during her shift, on the 27th of April, 2024 at 10.50am she noticed Nnamdi used the toilet and went straight to the kitchen to pick up biscuit from the container. She noticed NO was taking it one after the other with bare hands. Staff asked NO if he washed his hands after using the toilet, he said no. Staff said you cannot be touching all the biscuits with your unwashed hands and told him to stop it. Nnamdi made a cup of tea and took some biscuits and ate. He called his mother and remained in his bedroom. Later, he came to the office to seek for staff support to help pack as he was going to his mother's place on social leave. Staff supported him and he left the house in a good mood.

In response to your complaint above and listened to staff too. In this situation I would advise below;

- In this type of setting, precautions need to be taken always. So, when staff observe, they owe it as a duty of care to point it out so correction can be made. This is to prevent any infection which can be passed across.
- The biscuit container has been boldly been labelled for EVERYONE.
- You are aware that both client and staff need to always be treated with respect and yelling is not acceptable. However, if you felt that way, on behalf of the company we are sorry.
- Information documented by staff is what is been observed. However, you will never be victimized in anyway and that is why you are free to always express yourself. Our duty is to ensure you always feel safe and comfortable.

However, I applaud you for relating your concerns by email to me. Also, you have been behaving very well since you became compliant with your medication. Do keep it up. Please do let me know if I can help in any other way.

Thank you.

Kind regards.
