Dear Sir/Madam,

Re: Complaint Regarding Non-Compliance with GCSE Standards by Frobels Education Services and ICS Learn

I am writing to formally complain about the failure of Frobels Education Services—and by extension, ICS Learn—to comply with established GCSE standards. Specifically, I have not received the GCSE Access to Script Paper for my examinations, which is a statutory entitlement under current examination guidelines.

I requested a copy of my marked GCSE examination papers for Mathematics (Calculator and Non-Calculator) and English Literature. Instead of receiving these documents in a timely and appropriate manner, I was met with unclear communication and an unexpected fee of £60 for the processing of my request. Despite several attempts to resolve the issue, including confirming my payment and clarifying the required subjects, I have yet to receive my exam papers.

I believe that this failure to provide my entitled access is a breach of the procedures set forth by the examination standards. The imposition of additional fees and the subsequent delays have not only caused financial inconvenience but have also affected my right to a fair review of my academic assessments.

Given the circumstances, I am prepared to take legal action to enforce compliance and secure my statutory rights. At this stage, I am considering a claim for damages for £500 to cover the fees incurred, the distress caused by these delays, and any additional losses resulting from this non-compliance.

I respectfully request that Ofqual investigates this matter promptly and takes the necessary steps to ensure that Frobels Education Services and ICS Learn adhere to the required GCSE standards and procedures. Please confirm receipt of this complaint and advise on the actions you plan to take in addressing these concerns.

Thank you for your attention to this urgent matter. I look forward to your prompt response.

Yours faithfully,

Nnamdi Michael Okpala

In all honesty, I have a sense of distrust with my disability of ADHD, Autism and Aspergers in the learning disability class. I want one of three things to happen:

1. free reassessment of GCSE under the customer rights of 2015
- 2.Monetry damage compensation claim through Frobels Learning.
3. Money back.

Sincerely Nnamdi
