INCIDENT / ACCIDENT
At 12:24am, Nnamdi came to the office to inform staff that something is leaking in the fridge. Staff stood up promptly to check and realized he put raw meat in the section that is labelled cooked meals and it had defrost with the whole section filled with blood. He pulled it out and put it at the section labelled with his name. The section under his that belong to another client and the whole floor was filled with blood. Staff advised he put it in the sink and get it cleaned to be placed back in the freezer to prevent cross contamination. He got angry, went to his bedroom to call his mother. The mother told him to ask staff where he want Nnamdi to put the meat. Staff responded by telling him to clean it up and put it in his section of the freezer as the meat needs to remain frozen. Nnamdi insisted on keeping it there and that nothing will be done, then the mother started insulting staff as Nnamdi's phone was on speaker. She started calling staff "Nonsense, you are speaking rubbish, an ordinary carer. I am a Nurse and am telling you what to do, "you will not allow my son to sleep early and he will miss his appointment tomorrow, that is what you always do and you never remind him about appointment." She also said "Nnamdi should make a report tomorrow." Staff told her thank you, all will be noted.
ACTION TAKEN
Staff cleaned other client's food that the blood has stained, cleaned the remaining blood on the floor and the pack of meat. Staff informed manager.
OUTCOME OF INCIDENT
He put the meat back in the section that is labelled cooked meals and sat in front of the fridge while he spoke with his mother and at 1:20am he went to his bedroom. Attached are pictures for evident.
